

Creating spaces of experience: learners' diary meeting 4 in Tuebingen – April 12th-14th 2012

ID Formation

Three members of ID Formation attended the meeting in Tuebingen (Germany) in April. Two of us had met some of the partners during the previous meetings. It was the first time I attended a european project meeting. The friendly atmosphere enabled me to integrate the group quite easily.

All the partners first met at Team Training office, the project coordinator. The member staff introduced the two-day program: the first day would be divided into workshops (visits of different places); the second one would be dedicated to discussions about the project progress.

That mobility was an opportunity to experience the development of the project "Creating Spaces of Experience", which aims at developing learning/teaching in a way different from the institutional one. The places we visited were meeting points for people from different social backgrounds (Muslim convention center, Homeless center, House for young people...).

It has been very interesting to discover how people can teach/train using informal methods and how people can acquire formal skills.
