

The meeting in Tübingen offered an vivid example for the unlimited possibilities to make learning arrangements. Team-Training-Team took us for hours on a walking tour through the city – we visited places where underprivileged groups live and made contact to many of them – and I remembered again that a „school building“ is not an only place for group to learn. I remembered the principal of a great German psychotherapist Gunther Schmidt, who says: „Move if you want to move something“ and old Greek peripathetic methods of thinking: walk and talk and think. So much space for learning can be created by walking!
